2. Home Working Policy

Policy Statement

This Policy should be read in conjunction with the main Company Health and Safety Policies.

Birdsall Group Ltd (“the Company”) recognise and accept its responsibilities to its employees under the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974. The Company accepts this responsibility extends to the employee’s working environment at their home, and will ensure so far as reasonably practicable:

- the means to maintain a safe and healthy place of work
- provision and maintenance of such equipment or tools as is necessary for the employee to carry out their work
- safe access to and from the places of work
- adequate information, instruction, and training to prevent accidents and work related ill health
- a site assessment is carried out to ensure the safety of the employee and any other Company staff or visitors

The Company recognise that its employees are its most important asset and is committed to improving the working lives of all employees.

As far as possible, the Company operates flexible working arrangements. The home working policy is one of the flexible working options which can be requested by employees. It has been introduced with the aim of providing a better work life balance for all employees and to deliver on the Companies sustainability objectives.

The Company understand that there are situations where conflict between work and home life creates difficulties and where temporary or permanent changes to working arrangements can enable employees to re-establish a balance. The options available in this policy can help employees to accommodate the needs of both their home and professional lives.

The policy fits with the Company’s vision of providing the highest standards of service and achieving greater efficiency by providing a better working environment.

General Health and Safety

The overall responsibility for health and safety within the Company lies with the Directors of the Company. The HR Director, with the support of the Compliance Manager, has day to day responsibility for managing Health and Safety, which includes staff members who work remotely.

The Company will ensure that the employee’s work area at home is set up to an adequate standard to suit the employee, and to comply with the relevant Regulations.

The employee is responsible for ensuring that his/her working area is maintained to a satisfactory standard and for informing their line manager if any part of the environment requires alteration.

If any part of the employee’s home is to be used for client/customer interfacing, the Company may require (at its discretion) that specified areas are used solely for Company business activities.

Employee’s Duties:

The employee will ensure that any parts of their home designated as ‘work’ areas are maintained to professional standards.

Working with the Company Health & Safety management, the employee shall ensure that any hazards inherent with their work activities are properly managed, and that the same protocols as would apply at the Company’s premises are implemented.

It will be the responsibility of the employee to ensure the safety of any visiting Company visitors/clients/customers.

If any part of the work area becomes unsuitable by dint of the work process changing, damage or breakdown of equipment or furniture, or by the employee's physical needs, he/she must inform their line manager as soon as reasonably practicable.

Where PPE is needed following a Company Risk Assessment, the employee is required to use it.

This policy will be reviewed annually or when there is a change in circumstances, in work practices or the introduction of new legislation.

Home Working Definition

Home working is where employees perform some or all their duties at home. Home working can be divided into two categories:

- Regular home working: full-time or part-time employees with a formalised agreement to work from home on a regular basis for the whole or a significant percentage of their working week.
- Occasional or ad hoc home working: employees who work at home on an ad hoc basis, without a formalised agreement, to carry out a specific task. The office base for these employees will remain the Company's office.

General Principles

This policy applies to all employees of the Company. All employees can request formal home working arrangements however the Company will determine which posts are suitable for home working.

The Company encourages and supports home working where it meets business needs. The HR Director will consider the appropriateness of home working and will implement it where there are demonstrable benefits to both the Company and its employees.

The employees' line manager will regularly monitor and review home working arrangements in order to ensure their continued effectiveness. To this end, regular contact must be maintained between the home working employees and the employees' line manager.

The Company will treat all employees equitably, whether they are home, or office based.

Employees who work from home must ensure that they have a suitable environment in which they can work. Employees must ensure that they can work free from disruption, e.g. by having adequate care arrangements in place for dependents who may be at home during working hours.

It is the responsibility of the home working employees to inform their line manager if their home working base changes.

Employees are entitled to apply for combinations of flexible working options.

All employees, whether working at home or at their office base, are required to comply with the policies and procedures of the Company.

Applying for Formalised Home Working

In line with the flexible working rules introduced by the Employment Act 2002, employees can request a variation to their terms and conditions of employment in respect of working from home. However, employees do not have an automatic right to work from home.

To work effectively, home working has to primarily meet the business needs of the Company. Whilst not all jobs are suitable for home working, any request will be considered on its merits.

Employees who wish to apply for home working must do so in writing to the HR Director. The written application should set out:

- the nature of the employee's request and the reason for it
- the proposed start date for the new arrangement
- an explanation of how the employee thinks it will affect the Company and its business
- how such effects can be dealt with.

Where a request is made to work from home under an employee's statutory right to request flexible working arrangements, the requirements of the Company's Flexible Working Policy must also be fulfilled.

The Company will consider a request for home working from the first day of their employment and hold a meeting with the employee.

Applications for home working will be approved at the HR Directors discretion, taking into account the individual's circumstances and the needs of the Company. When a request for home working has been refused the Company will provide the reasons for the refusal in writing.

If employees feel that an application for home working has been unreasonably refused, they may appeal against the decision in line with the Appeals procedure contained in the Company's Flexible Working Policy.

Employees working from home will be required to sign a Home Working Agreement before being allowed to work from home. Approved home working arrangements will be subject to a trial evaluation period before being confirmed.

The Company reserves the right to review and vary existing home working arrangements and end an existing home working arrangement if it proves unsatisfactory.

Home working may be withdrawn from employees who abuse the system. Such employees may also face disciplinary action under the Company's disciplinary policy.

Selection Criteria

In determining whether to grant a request for home working the following criteria will be considered:

- The suitability of the job and whether the work is capable of being undertaken at home
- The impact on the level of service, efficiency and effectiveness
- Whether costs incurred are reasonable
- The needs of the employee for more flexible working arrangements
- The suitability of the home environment
- The suitability of the employee
- The ability of the employee to cope with reduced social contact
- Whether arrangements can be put in place for effective communication between the home working employee and the Company

Equipment and Connectivity

The Company will provide the necessary equipment to enable employees to work effectively from home. This will usually include:

- The supply of a mobile phone for the exclusive purpose of business use
- Relevant IT equipment including PC, laptops, printer (PAT Testing to be carried out on required electrical equipment in line with company equipment maintenance procedures)
- Relevant office equipment (further to a DSE assessment)
- Consumables, such as printer paper and ink, and stationary

The Company will bear the cost of installing, maintaining, repairing or replacing the equipment.

The Company reserves the right to enter the employee's home for the purposes of maintaining and servicing the equipment.

Equipment supplied by the Company is not for personal use. The equipment should be used exclusively for Company business, and it must not be used by anyone other than the employee.

The equipment provided will remain the property of the Company. Employees are required to return any equipment supplied by the Company should the home working arrangement end.

The use of personal equipment for work purposes is permissible if it satisfies the necessary Health and Safety and technical requirements.

The Company will not be responsible for maintaining employees' own computers and equipment.

Health and Safety

The Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 applies to home working employees as well as office-based employees. Under the Act, the Company is responsible for the health, safety and welfare of its employees, wherever they work. At the same time employees have an obligation to ensure that they take reasonable care not to expose themselves and others to risks to health and safety.

Prior to any employee starting home working, the Employee will undertake a Homeworking Checklist and a DSE Self-Assessment at the employee's proposed place of work in order to ensure that it is suitable for its purpose and that the work can be carried out safely. Should any remedial work or measures be required, they must be completed prior to the employee starting to work from home.

The Homeworking Checklist will be reviewed on an annual basis to ensure that it remains appropriate and in line with the latest guidance from the HSE on Homeworking.

Home working employees are responsible for day-to-day health and safety issues and for reporting any concerns to the manager. Employees must take reasonable care to ensure that they work in a safe working environment.

Failure to comply with the health and safety provisions may result in the withdrawal of the home working arrangement and disciplinary action.

Insurance and Other Financial Concerns

Equipment supplied to home working employees is covered by the Company's insurance policy. Employees must take reasonable care to ensure that all equipment owned by the Company is kept secure.

Employees will be held responsible for the loss or damage to any supplied equipment when caused by failure to take adequate precautions to ensure its safety.

Employees working from home are covered by the Company's Employer's Liability policy in respect of injury arising out of and in the course of employment at home.

It is the responsibility of the home working employee to provide adequate home buildings and contents insurance. The Company will not accept liability for damage caused to the home or its contents.

Home working arrangements may affect the home and contents insurance policies of the householder. Before commencing home, working employees are required to contact their own insurance company to advise that they will be working at home on a regular basis.

Some mortgage and rental agreements do not allow for the home premises to be used for work purposes. It is the responsibility of the employees to inform their landlord or mortgage provider and to obtain permission where necessary.

Employees should check with their local council as to whether business rates are payable in respect of any part of their home used for business purposes.

The Company will not accept any responsibility for an employee who suffers any detriment, loss or legal action as a result of not obtaining the necessary permissions from their insurer, mortgage lender, landlord etc.

Confidentiality, Security and Data Protection

All employees, whether working at home or at their office base, are required to comply with the Company's Data Protection Policy.

Employees are responsible for ensuring the security of the Company property and all Company information, files, documents etc. within their possession.

It is the responsibility of the line manager to determine whether the home working employee is able to retain the security and confidentiality of information within the home. Line managers must be satisfied that all reasonable precautions are taken to maintain confidentiality of material in accordance with the requirements of the Company.

Data security is a particular concern for home working employees. Employees must ensure that all information stored and accessed, including written information and that held on a computer, is secure and cannot be accessed by other parties. Employees must take no action which might prejudice the security of such information.

Failure to keep information secure is a serious matter and will be dealt with under the Company's Disciplinary procedure.

Hours of work

Employees working from home and their line manager are required to agree an appropriate working pattern in the Home Working Agreement. Home working employees must ensure that appropriate breaks are taken.

Requests from home working employees to change their hours of work will be treated in the same way as requests from office based employees and must be agreed by their line manager.

Annual and Sick leave

Requests for annual leave must be sent to and agreed by the line manager following the normal procedure.

Employees working from home will be subject to the normal sickness absence procedures.

Expenses

Expenses paid by the Company will be agreed at the outset of the Employment Contract.

Further reasonable expenses incurred by the employee may be reimbursed at the Company's discretion, to be decided on a case by case basis.

When carrying out a risk assessment or dynamic risk assessment, the employee will consider:

- access and egress to the place of work

5. Stress & Mental Wellbeing at Work Policy

Policy Statement

We are committed to protecting the health, safety, and wellbeing of our staff. We recognise the importance of identifying and tackling the causes of work-related stress. We also recognise that personal stress, while unrelated to the workplace, can adversely affect the wellbeing of staff at work. We want to support the mental wellbeing of all our staff and will provide appropriate support for staff who are suffering from stress or mental ill health, on a confidential basis where appropriate, regardless of its source.

We will:

- Promote a culture of open communication. We want staff to feel confident that any concerns they raise about their work or working environment will be addressed. We will provide both formal and informal means for them to raise concerns.
- Provide training for all managers in good management practices.
- Take account of stress and mental wellbeing when planning and allocating workloads. We will provide opportunities to discuss these through our appraisal processes.
- Monitor working hours and overtime to ensure that staff are not overworking and monitor holidays to ensure that staff are using their entitlement.
- Ensure risk assessments address work-related stress.
- Facilitate requests for flexible working where reasonably practicable.
- Ensure that in any workplace reorganisation our change management processes are designed to minimise uncertainty and stress.
- Implement policies and procedures to address factors that can cause stress at work, or add to personal stress, in particular so that we can:
- Provide a workplace free from harassment, bullying and victimisation; and
- Address inappropriate behavior through disciplinary action.
- Provide training to help all staff understand and recognise the causes of work-related stress and mental ill health, the impact of stress from factors in everyday life and the steps they can take to protect and enhance their own mental wellbeing and that of their colleagues.

This policy covers all employees. This policy does not form part of any employee's contract of employment, and we may amend it at any time.

Legal obligations

We have a legal duty to take reasonable care to ensure that your health is not put at risk by excessive pressures or demands arising from the way work is organised.

This policy takes account of our obligations under the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations 1999, Employment Rights Act 1996, Protection from Harassment Act 1997, Working Time Regulations 1998 and Equality Act 2010.

Personnel responsible for the policy

Our board of directors has overall responsibility for the effective operation of this policy and for ensuring compliance with the relevant statutory framework. The board has delegated day-to-day responsibility for operating the policy and ensuring its maintenance and review to the Human Resources Director.

We will monitor the development of good practice in approaches to work-related stress and mental wellbeing at work and will keep our practices and the effectiveness of this policy under review to ensure it is achieving its stated objectives.

All managers have a responsibility to recognise potential issues of work-related stress or mental ill health in the staff they manage. They should seek advice from HR if they have concerns.

All staff should ensure that they are familiar with this policy and act in accordance with its aims and objectives. Staff should plan and organise their work to meet personal and organisational objectives and co-operate with the support, advice and guidance that may be offered by their line managers and the HR Director. Anyone who experiences or is aware of a situation that may result in work-related stress or undermine mental wellbeing at work should speak to a manager.

Understanding stress and mental health

Stress is the adverse reaction people have to excessive pressures or demands placed on them. Stress is not an illness but, sustained over a period, it can lead to mental and/or physical illness.

Mental health is a term to describe our emotional, psychological and social wellbeing; it affects how we think, feel and act and how we cope with the normal pressures of everyday life. Positive mental health is rarely an absolute state since factors inside and outside work affect mental health, meaning that we move on a spectrum that ranges from being in good to poor mental health.

There is an important distinction between working under pressure and experiencing stress. Certain levels of pressure are acceptable and normal in every job. They can improve performance, enable individuals to meet their full potential and provide a sense of achievement and job satisfaction. However, when pressure becomes excessive it produces stress and undermines mental health.

Pressures outside the workplace, whether the result of unexpected or traumatic events such as accidents, illness, bereavement, family breakdown or financial worries, can result in stress and poor mental health. They can also compound normal workplace pressures.

We recognise that individuals react to similar situations in different ways and that what triggers stress and poor mental health varies from person to person.

Supporting mental wellbeing at work

We want to ensure that our workplace supports good mental health for all staff. However, we recognise that there may be occasions when events at work or outside work result in staff feeling that their mental health is suffering. Anyone who feels that they are suffering from work-related stress should follow the steps set out in paragraph 0 in addition to making use of the support services referred to in this policy which all staff are encouraged to access if they ever feel they need support or assistance.

All managers should (working with the HR Director) provide support for staff. They need to communicate support levels to all employees on a quarterly basis such as:

- Promote a culture of open communication.
- Effectively plan and provide feedback on performance.
- Ensure that staff receive the necessary training.
- Monitor workloads and reallocate work where necessary.
- Ensure that staff understand the standards of behavior expected of them and others, and act on behavior that falls below those standards.

Help and information can also be obtained from Mind, the mental health charity, www.mind.org.uk or the Samaritans, www.samaritans.org.

If any member of staff is considered by their manager or colleagues to be at serious risk of self-harm, or of harming others, action must be taken straight away. The matter should be referred to HR who will seek medical advice. The wellbeing of the members of staff and those around them will always be our first concern.

Addressing work-related stress

If you believe you are suffering from work-related stress you should discuss this with your manager or team leader in the first instance. If you feel unable to do so you should contact the Human Resources Department. You should also access our support services.

Once an issue affecting your health comes to the attention of your manager, team leader, or HR we will discuss with you what steps can be taken to address that issue. Those steps may include any of the following:

- A review of your current job role, responsibilities, workload and working hours. Adjustments may be agreed to these, on a temporary basis and subject to further review, where appropriate.
- Where it appears that stress has been caused by bullying or harassment, investigation under our Disciplinary and/or Grievance Procedures.
- Referral for medical advice, treatment and/or a medical report to be provided by the Occupational Health Department, our medical advisers or any specialist or GP who has been treating you.
- If you are on sickness absence, discuss an appropriate return to work programme. Our Sickness Absence Policy may be applied.

The Department of Occupational Health will continue to be used appropriately to help staff overcome problems associated with work-related stress as well as other stress and the impact that has on their ability to do their duties.

Absence due to stress or mental ill health

If you are absent due to work-related stress or mental ill health, you should follow the sickness absence reporting procedure contained in your contract and/or our Sickness Absence Policy.

In cases of prolonged or repeated absence it may be necessary to apply the procedure set out in our Sickness Absence Policy.

Confidentiality

Information about stress, mental health and mental wellbeing is highly sensitive. Every member of staff is responsible observing the high level of confidentiality that is required when dealing with information about stress or mental health whether they are supporting a colleague or because they are otherwise involved in the operation of a workplace policy or procedure.

Breach of confidentiality may give rise to disciplinary action.

However, there are occasions when information about stress or mental wellbeing needs to be shared with third parties. For example:

- Where steps need to be taken to address work-related stress such as reallocating work within a team.
- Where medical advice is required on how to support a member of staff, address issues raised by work-related stress or address issues raised by mental ill health.
- Where allegations of harassment, bullying or other misconduct require a disciplinary investigation or proceedings to take place.
- Where a member of staff presents an immediate danger to themselves or others.

In these circumstances, wherever possible, matters will be discussed with the member of staff concerned before any action is taken.

Protection for those reporting stress or assisting with an investigation

Staff who report that they are suffering from work-related stress or mental ill health, who support a colleague in making such a report or who participate in any investigation connected with this policy in good faith will be protected from any form of intimidation or victimisation.

If you feel you have been subjected to any such intimidation or victimisation, you should seek support from your line manager and the HR. You may also raise a complaint in accordance with our Grievance Procedure.

If, after investigation, you are found to have provided false information in bad faith, you will be subject to action under our Disciplinary Procedure.

6. Eye Test Policy

Policy Statement

An employee is entitled to a free eyesight test under the Health and Safety (Display Screen Equipment) Regulations if they use Display Screen Equipment (“DSE”) as a significant part of his/her normal work.

The requirement to provide a free sight test is not automatic, the Regulations only require an employer to provide a free eyesight test on request from the employee.

It is Birdsall’s policy to support and encourage the proactive use of eye tests.

Criteria to be met:

- A computer worker must be assessed as a DSE ‘User’ for any entitlement to apply
- If the employee has been assessed as a user, they must obtain their manager’s authorisation for the eye test to be given at the Company’s expense. Appointments should be arranged to take place outside of working hours wherever possible.
- The employee must bring back a receipt and the optician’s test results
- The date of the eye test should be recorded on the person’s DSE assessment form
- Users can request further eye tests at regular intervals after the first test (generally specified by the optician at approximately 2 yearly intervals) or earlier, if they are having visual difficulties that they believe is being caused by their DSE work
- If the tests indicate the need for glasses (called ‘special corrective appliances’) for the user’s DSE work, the Company’s liability is restricted to payment of the cost of a basic pair of frames and lenses (plus the cost of the eye test/examination as above).

Note 1 – If, following the eye test, special corrective appliances have been specified by the optician, and a user chooses more costly appliances - for example, designer frames or lenses, or optional treatments not necessary for the work, the Company will contribute only that portion of the total cost (see below) equal to the cost of the basic lenses and frame as required under the regulations.

Note 2 - The cost of normal, everyday use spectacles that are also worn for computer work, are at the user’s own expense.

Note 3 – The Company is not responsible for any corrections for vision defects or examinations for eye complaints that are not related to DSE work.

Where an eye test by an optometrist suggests that a user is suffering eye injury or disease, the user is to be referred to his/her registered medical practitioner for further examination (keep a record).

Company contributions

Approval must be obtained in writing before claims are submitted. This then needs to be attached along with the receipt to the expenses form. Currently the Company contribution towards these costs:

- Eye test/examination: Up to a maximum of £50.00
- Basic frames/lenses or contribution towards higher specification appliances, up to a maximum of £75.00

Users that have been authorised to have an eye test/examination should arrange for it to be carried out with an appropriate High Street optician within the Company cost criteria as above.

Incidents involving the possession or use of illegal drugs on company premises will result in the authorities being notified.

Attending work under the influence of drugs

You are strictly prohibited from attending work or business functions under the influence of drugs (including 'legal highs') or solvents. It is your responsibility to ensure you attend work in an unimpaired condition.

If you are taking prescription or over the counter medication, we advise you to seek advice from your doctor or pharmacist regarding the effects this will have on you in your role and/or in the workplace. You should also have regard to any side effects or prohibited activities detailed in the instructions, such as drowsiness or advice that you should not operate heavy machinery.

You should advise your manager in confidence if medication may have an impact on your health and safety or that of others. This is to enable the Company to take appropriate action where necessary. You do not have to inform the Company of what illness the medication relates to.

Alcohol

Attending work under the influence of alcohol.

You are strictly prohibited from attending work under the influence of alcohol. It is your responsibility to ensure you attend work in an unimpaired condition.

Consuming alcohol

Without prior permission from the HR Director, you are strictly prohibited from consuming alcohol:

- During working time
- Whilst on company, client or suppliers' premises (this includes vehicles)
- At lunchtime or during breaks
- When representing the Company at business/client functions or conferences

Where permission is given for alcohol to be consumed, you must demonstrate responsible behavior and always maintain a professional image and standards. You must remember that the Company's usual code of conduct still applies. Excessive alcohol consumption or unacceptable behavior will not be tolerated by the Company. These rules are equally applicable to work related social events, such as Christmas parties, where prior permission is not required to consume alcohol.

If you are permitted to consume alcohol, you must ensure that you comply with relevant legislation including drink driving legislation.

Bringing alcohol into the workplace

Alcohol must not be brought onto the company or client's premises (including vehicles) without the prior permission of the HR Director. The only exception to this is that you are permitted to bring alcohol onto our premises if it has been given as a gift from a client and you comply with the Company's gift policy.

If you are permitted to bring alcohol onto company premises it must remain sealed and out of sight of visitors or stored in the Server Room.

If you have personal use of a company car, you are permitted to carry alcohol in it providing this is done in your own time and you comply with road traffic laws.

Driving whilst under the influence of alcohol or drugs

If we know or suspect that you are under the influence of alcohol or drugs, we will not permit you to drive, whether this is your own or a company vehicle. In such circumstances we will ask that you make alternative arrangements to get home and will reasonably assist you to do so, such as by ordering a taxi. Where you insist on driving, it may be necessary for us to contact the police.

If you have any questions regarding this Drug and Alcohol policy, please contact your manager. Policy on Drug and Alcohol Dependency

We acknowledge that some employees may have or may develop a dependency on drugs or alcohol. We will endeavour to support such employees in so far as is reasonably possible in accordance with the needs of the business and/or our health and safety duties.

This policy sets out the approach the Company will usually take where an employee informs us that they have a drug or alcohol dependency.

Whilst this policy is aimed at assisting employees who have alcohol or drug problems, we must advise you that the following actions are not covered by this policy and may result in your dismissal:

- Being found to be under the influence of drugs or alcohol whilst at work or
- Another serious breach of our policy on Drugs, Alcohol, and the Workplace

In this policy, drug and/or alcohol dependency will be referred to generally as dependency.

Voluntarily seeking help for dependency

If you feel you have a dependency, we encourage you to seek appropriate professional support for this at an early stage and to inform us of your situation. Such information will be treated in confidence.

When you voluntarily inform us that you have a dependency, your manager will discuss your situation with you. We have a duty to ensure your health and safety and that of others and as such we will need to initially assess whether it is safe for you to remain in the workplace and/or continue to carry out your full range of duties. We would like to stress that where there is no risk to health and safety you will usually be able to remain in the workplace.

Where a risk to health and safety is identified, the Company's response is dependent on the circumstances. It could include, but is not limited to, the following:

- Adjusting your duties to remove the risk where it is possible and feasible to do so in accordance with the requirements of the business
- Temporarily transferring you to other more suitable work and/or a more appropriate location, where possible and feasible to do so in accordance with the requirements of the business
- Initially suspending you on basic pay pending a medical opinion regarding your condition. If the above is applicable in your case, we will discuss the situation with you.

Where medical advice is that you are unfit to attend work, or you are unfit to carry out your full duties (and it is not possible whether for operational or other reasons for us to adjust your duties) your absence from work will be treated as sick leave and you will be paid accordingly. The medical opinion and the Company's response to it will be discussed with you.

Encouragement to seek treatment

When you inform us that you have a dependency you will be counselled about the need for treatment. Where specialist treatment is required, we will encourage you to access this to overcome your dependency. Specialist treatment should usually be sought from the National Health Service. However, the Company may also assist you in accessing relevant organisations.

Time off work for treatment

If you need time off work to attend treatment for your dependency and this is recommended by a medical professional, we will treat this as sickness absence and the usual company sick pay rules will apply. The reasons for your absence will be kept confidential.

Returning to work after treatment

As in any other case of illness, your return to work after treatment will depend on confirmation by your general practitioner that you are fit for work. In this context, fitness for work means that your addiction is being monitored and controlled and that you do not present a risk to either your own safety or that of others. The opinion of the company or site appointed occupational health advisor may be sought before agreeing to a return to work date.

Where stress is a possible contributor to your dependency, we will take the necessary steps to ensure that any work-related causes are identified and addressed.

Following a return to work after treatment, it is essential that confidential and regular monitoring by the Company continues. Following the company's return to work procedure

Dependency and work performance

As an employer we require all employees to perform their duties to the required standard which will have been communicated to you. If you have a drug or alcohol dependency this can cause your performance at work to suffer.

Where this is the case, the Company will offer support, so far as is reasonable in accordance with the needs of the business, to assist you in improving your performance to an acceptable level.

Any support the Company may provide under this policy is dependent on:

- Your GP or Occupational Health practitioner diagnosing a dependency and
- You recognise that you have a dependency and co-operating with treatment and rehabilitation

Subject to operational requirements and feasibility, the support the Company may offer includes adjusting your duties or accommodating other support recommended by a medical professional during your treatment and for an agreed period thereafter.

If your performance does not improve, if applicable, the normal capability procedures may be followed, which may result in your dismissal.

Mobile Phones

Mobile phones sat nav's and tablets are seen as an essential means of work communication. However, it is illegal to use a handheld mobile phone while in control of a vehicle, whether it is mobile or stationary i.e. in traffic. If caught, you can get an automatic fixed penalty notice which you could get 6 penalty points on your license and a fine of £200.

Your case could also go to court, and you could be disqualified from driving and get a maximum fine of £1,000.

All drivers/vehicles will be provided with hands-free kits; however, a mobile phone should only be used when it is necessary. You are permitted to use hands-free phones and sat navigation when you are driving, but if the police think you are distracted and not in control of your vehicle you could still get stopped and penalised. If you are involved in an accident and there is a possibility that you were not concentrating due to phone use, for example, you may also be charged with 'driving without due care and attention', or worse.

Whenever possible, mobile phones should be switched off while driving and a message facility used. Messages should only be picked up and responded to when it is safe to do so.

Drivers must not dial out or send or read texts while in motion. (This includes hands free kits.) They should find a safe place to stop before making any calls.

Where there is a passenger or 'drivers' mate' in the vehicle they should be responsible for all communication, however, all driver distractions must be kept to an absolute minimum.

Drivers must report faulty hands-free sets immediately. These will then be repaired or replaced as soon as possible. Drivers will not be permitted or encouraged to use a handheld mobile phone while they have no hands-free kit.

Any driver failing to adhere to the mobile phone policy will be subject to disciplinary proceedings.

Satellite Navigation Systems

Satellite Navigation Systems can be a useful tool for drivers; however, they can also be a dangerous distraction.

All destinations should be entered while the vehicle is stationary in a safe place. All drivers should stop if it is necessary to take their eyes off the road to check routes.

They should be positioned so as not to impair vision. They should not be positioned where they are likely to cause injuries in the event of a collision.

All vehicle distractions should be kept to a minimum and it is the responsibility of the driver to ensure that they are not likely to be distracted.

Journey Planning

The management will ensure that appointments are scheduled to a realistic timetable and are planned to consider the essential need for adequate rest periods. Any employee who feels that their timetables/schedules are unrealistic, and they need to take risks or break speed limits to complete them must voice their concerns with their line manager as soon as possible.

The management will monitor weather conditions and will reschedule deliveries and/ or appointments etc. if conditions become too dangerous for the drivers.

Drivers must ensure that their personal lives do not cause them to come to work tired. Driver fatigue is a well-known cause of accidents.

Condition of vehicle Cleanliness

The company image is important and is reflected through you and through any company property including company vehicles. It is therefore your responsibility, where a company vehicle has been entrusted to you, to keep its exterior and interior clean, ensuring all rubbish and waste is removed from the vehicle daily.

Random checks

We reserve the right to conduct random checks to ensure that these policies are being observed and to repossess the vehicle if they are not.

No fixtures or alterations

No fixtures such as aerials, roof racks, additional storage racking, towing apparatus, stickers or similar may be attached to company vehicles without prior written permission.

Before returning the vehicle to the Company, it should be restored to the condition it was in when first received by you, subject to normal wear and tear.

No change or alteration may be made to the mechanical or structural specification of any company vehicle.

Vehicle Maintenance

All drivers are required to carry out basic maintenance on the vehicle for which they are responsible. They should check oil, water, tyre pressures and windscreen washer fluid weekly and carry out a full vehicle inspection checklist monthly.

In winter months, drivers are reminded that they must have a clear windscreen before setting off. Peering through a small section while the screen de-mists is not acceptable. Ensure that all your windows are clear/free of ice/snow etc. before moving off.

The management will ensure that all vehicles used on behalf of the Company are regularly inspected and strictly maintained using at least the manufacturer's recommended service schedules (and if applicable, in accordance with Operator license requirements).

INSURANCE

Fleet policy

All company vehicles are covered by a fleet insurance policy and the terms of this policy must be strictly observed. For security reasons, the Company keeps certificates of insurance.

Securing vehicles and contents

All company vehicles should be kept locked when not in use, and all contents should be stored out of sight, preferably in the boot. Additionally, you should ensure that any company vehicle is parked in well-lit areas in clear public view.

If a vehicle is stolen, the Company is required to satisfy the insurance company that there has been no negligence. If you have not observed this policy, we will hold you responsible for any resulting loss that would not have been covered by the insurance.

Reporting loss

In cases of loss, whether of the vehicle and/or its fittings or contents, you must inform the Company immediately. Full details of the contents of the vehicle must be itemised and given to the Company.

Where you are held responsible by the insurer for any accident, incident or damage, then we reserve the right to deduct the excess on the insurance policy as a minimum and possibly the total costs of the accident and/or damage from your wages.

Severe Weather

Winter can bring extremes of weather from dense fog to snowfall that closes major roads. The Company will monitor weather conditions and will attempt to ensure so far as reasonably or operationally practicable that no-one is sent on a journey that may take them into a severe weather front.

The Company will ensure that all vehicles supplied by the Company have been properly maintained and prepared for bad weather.
